THE GLENDALE NEWS

DEVOTED TO THE BEST INTERESTS OF THE SAN FERNANDO VALLEY

VOL. VI. GLENDALE, LOS ANGELES COUNTY, CAL., FRIDAY, MARCH 24, 1911 No. 48

CITY TRUSTEES

All members present except Mr. Lane who entered late. A long list of demands presented principally for bond election expenses.

The city engineer was instructed to prepare plans for proposed streets, two or more, north and south, east of Adams street and also east and west in same locality as may be considered advisable. At this point business was suspended and Attorney Long with a citizens committee from Tropico were heard on the question of the annexation election to be held on the following day. The gentlemen made a plea for the calling off of the election but the city attorney advised that the trustees had no option in the matter and the election must proceed. No action was therefore taken.

The street superintendent was instructed to secure a sufficient bond from the Domestic Gas Co. to cover the proposed new work of said company in the city. The request of Harry M. Hess for a tax rebate amounting to $7.90 was considered favorably.

A communication was received from the Merchants Association of San Francisco requesting endorsement of constitutional amendment No. 15.

The license of the Glendale and Eagle Rock Railway Co. was referred to the city attorney for collection.

Mr. Emil Fram was authorized to solicit for not to exceed three days to ascertain if the people of Glendale will employ him to remove waste garbage, etc., Mr. Fram to be paid at the rate of $3.00 per day in the event of his plans not being carried out. An ordinance establishing the grade of the east line of Louise street from the north line of First street to a point intersecting the prolongation of Doran street, was read for third time and passed.

The city engineer was instructed to draft a resolution of intention to improve a portion of First street from Brand boulevard eastward. The board then proceeded to canvass the returns on the late bond election and on motion of Mr. Coker a resolution was adopted declaring the result. The city clerk was instructed to prepare an abstract of proceedings in bond election. The city attorney was instructed to prepare an ordinance providing for the issuing and sale of bonds. The board then canvassed the returns of the "Straw Vote" taken at the election of the 17th to determine site of public buildings. The result was declared to be 72 votes in favor of site at Fourth and Jackson streets and 229 votes for the site Fourth and Howard in conjunction with the one at Fifth and Howard. The latter proposition was declared to be the sites selected by the trustees and the city attorney was instructed to take the steps to secure title.

GLENDALE VALLEY IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION.

Instead of Thursday evening, as heretofore the regular meetings of the association will hereafter be held on Tuesday evening in the K. of P. hall on Brand boulevard. Next Tuesday evening the program will be even more than usually attractive, and will be in part as follows:

Vocal solo.....Miss E. M. Hitching
Accompanist, Mrs. R. J. Mesick.
Violin Solo.....Miss Rachel McClure
Accompanist, Miss Helen Morgan.
Vocal Solo.....Mr. A. R. Taylor
Accompanied by Mrs. Taylor.
Recitation.....Miss Mildred McKee
Cornet Solo.....Mrs. O. A. Welling
Duet, "Oh that We Two Were Maying"
Miss Vera McKee; Mr. A. R. Taylor
Miss Belle McKee, Accompanist
Vocal Solo.....Miss Pearl Harrison
Accompanist, Mrs. A. R. Taylor

IN THE LOCAL COURT.

Before Recorder Whomes last Tuesday the case of Swanson versus Bonner was heard. It was a suit brought over a difference of $20 on a contract, the plaintiff being a plumber who had given the defendant an order on a wholesale house in Los Angeles upon an agreement that he receive a commission on the amount. Judge Whomes decided in favor of the plaintiff, basing his decision on the defendant's own testimony.

ATTEND FEDERATION BANQUET.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Church were among those who attended on the evening of the 17th the banquet given at Humburger's cafe by the Federation of State Organizations. They report a very enjoyable program, the speeches which included one by ex-Vice President Fairbanks, being in the class of real oratory. There was represented one or more state organizations from nearly every state in the union and even far Alaska.

A party of "religious" cranks have left Findlay, Ohio, for California expecting to find near Los Angeles a "sacred" stream in which they propose to bathe. Let us hope that it is not the one that is the source of our water supply!

THE ELECTIONS

Bond Proposition Carries by Large Majority—City Hall Goes to Fourth and Howard, Library to Fifth and Kenwood

The election Friday of last week proved to be a one-sided affair, the result being a surprise to almost every one. The supporters of "Proposition Number Two," the one that carried, worked hard in getting voters out and probably missed but few who were interested in establishing the city hall as near Glendale avenue as possible. On the other hand there was no concerted opposition either to the bond issue or the site that finally won out. The issue was somewhat complicated by joining the city hall and the library propositions, so that voters may have to some extent while not entirely approving of the two sites, accepted the combination as the more desirable alternative. As forecasted in these columns the bonds carried, the amount being generally accepted as small enough to be unobjectionable from the standpoint of the taxpayers who seem to have been satisfied that in any event the city does not stand to lose anything.

The vote was as follows: For bonds 245 against bonds 81.

For Proposition Number One (4th and Jackson), 79.

For Proposition Number Two (Separate sites), 229.

The sites selected cost a total of $10,277, which will leave about $7722 to be put into the building for city hall. The bonds may bring a small premium. There is nothing to be done about the erection of a library at present, but that matter will no doubt be taken up soon. Having possession of the lots it will now be an easy matter to secure a Carnegie library if the people as a whole consider it desirable.

ANNEXATION ELECTION.

As reported in the account of the meeting of the city trustees, a large delegation from Tropico appeared before that body Monday evening and made an appeal to have the annexation election called off. They stated that no appeal had been taken from the decision of Judge Wilbur in the Tropico Incorporation matter, but Mr. Davenport assured them that the appeal would be made within the time given by law, and Mr. Muehlman, city attorney, advised the trustees that they had no option in the matter and that the election must come off according to call. Considering the circumstanees, many voters being under the impression that no election would be held, the vote was a good one as to numbers. In Tropico the total of 154 votes cast in a district having less than 200 voters, showing general interest in the matter; of these the annexationists had 99 and the other side 55. In Glendale the vote was large in proportion to the apparent interest taken by the public in general as at no time were there more than two or three voters in evidence around the polling place at the city hall. The verdict here was almost unanimous, 167 to 3.

GLENDALE CAPTURES HONORS AT PASADENA HORSE SHOW.

Frank Showalter of the Central Stables is feeling pretty well satisfied with his experience at the Horse Show given by the Polo Club at Pasadena last week. His mare "Babe" carried off second honors in the contest for the "best single livery turnout kept for hire." There were seventeen entries. The first prize was given to B. F. Hogan, who paraded a Victoria, while Mr. Showalter showed only a runabout. The third prize was taken by Mr. Showalter's mare "Bess."

Saturday evening there was a contest for a "consolation" prize, open to all horses that had failed to win first or second prizes. In this contest, "Bess" came out the winner, and her owner carried off a handsome cup, thus making him the winner of three prizes for the two horses. Mr. Showalter's total list of trophies consisted of one red and one yellow ribbon, a handsome cup, and $25 in money.

YOUNG TRAPPER'S EXHIBITION.

It will doubtless be astonishing to the people of this place to learn that within two short miles from this place wild cats, grey and red foxes, lynx, badgers, and coyotes are being caught. These animals are being captured every day and the youthful trapper is Wallace Tupper, residing with his parents at the corner of Second and Belmont streets. Despite his youth Wallace is an expert in his line, having learned the business from "Jerkey" Johnson, who is considered one of the greatest trappers who ever practiced on the Pacific Coast. About five months ago, while on a bear hunt in the mountains near Bakersfield, "Jerkey" told young Tupper just about all the tricks of the trade that he knew, and since coming to this place the young trapper has had wonderful success.

Tupper informs us that the Verdugo hills are thickly populated with these animals. Throughout the hills Tupper's traps, numbering about forty, are set. He catches most of his animals by the "blind trap" method. The cat and the fox will take bait, but the wise coyote will steer clear of any tempter of this kind, and for this reason the buried trap is used. The traps used average about a foot in length and are made of the best of steel. The traps are buried along the small trails and a visit to each of them is made every day by Tupper. He nearly always travels alone. In early morning he will start for the hills on his faithful, sure-footed pony, accompanied by several of his dogs. He seldom takes a companion with him, but prefers to take to the trails alone.

Deep in one of the canyons Tupper has a hideout. Whenever he is overtaken by darkness he goes to his hut instead of coming all the way to Glendale. In both his mountain hut and at his home here he has a large number of skins of different kinds. He sells the skins to private parties in Los Angeles and Pasadena and the prices he receives depends entirely upon the grade and kind of the skins. At one time he sold a cross-fox skin for fifty dollars, but this is the highest price he has received since coming here.

Besides using the traps Tupper often hunts with his dog and rifle, and, as he is an expert marksman, he has considerable success. Upon catching a coyote he immediately skins it and feeds the meat to his dogs. He has a blood hound and a very valuable fox hound. Tupper says that his dogs know the round of the traps as well as he does, and that they never get caught in the steel claws.

Some of Tupper's traps are a short distance of some of the homes in North Glendale, but he tells us that from these traps he gets some of his finest skins.

An exhibition of Mr. Tupper's collection of skins can be seen at the Glendale pharmacy, but these are just a few in number compared to those he has taken and has at this time in the process of curing. He claims to have taken at least 100 different kinds of animals in the past three months from the Verdugo hills. The Glendale people should not fail to see Mr. Tupper's wild cat in the pharmacy window.

PRIZE ESSAY ENTERTAINMENT.

As previously announced through these columns the prize essay entertainment at which will be read four essays chosen from among those written by the pupils of the high and Fourth and Sixth street grammar schools will occur on Saturday night, March 25, at the Glendale high school auditorium.

Those having essays will be Elizabeth Byrkitt, Emma Pulliam and Violet Turner from the high school and Cordella Croad, Fay Stannard and Ruth Palmer from the grammar schools. Interesting numbers of music and readings will also be given by local talent, and music by the High School Mandolin Club of the high schools.

A collection will be taken to raise money for the prizes which are $3.00 for the high school and $2.00 for the Eighth grades of the grammar school and $1.00 for the Seventh grade, Fourth street school.

A CALIFORNIA PAPER.

Friends in West Chester are in receipt of a copy of the special edition of the Glendale (Cal.) News, published by Mr. J. C. Sherer. It is very creditable sheet and gives several half-tone views of the pretty little town, showing its schools and comfortable bungalows. Glendale is one of the growing towns within a few miles of Los Angeles, and is an ideal place of residence.—West Chester (Pa.) News.

THE CHURCHES

ST. MARK'S.

St. Mark's Church, corner of Fourth and Isabel. Divine service for Sunday, March 26th, (Fourth Sunday in Lent). Holy communion 7:30 a. m.; morning prayer and sermon, 11 a. m.; Even-song, 4:30 p. m.; Sunday school, 9:45 a. m.; confirmation class in church, 3 p. m.

Services for fourth week in Lent. Tuesday with Mrs. Cook, Pioneer drive, 7:30 p. m.; Wednesday and Friday, 7:30 p. m.; Thursday and Saturday, 4:30 p. m.

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The annual meeting of this church and congregation will be held at the church at 7:30 p. m., Wednesday, March 29. The reports of all departments of church work will be heard and the various offices for the coming year will be filled at this meeting. All members of the congregation as well as members of the church are entitled to a vote for all officers except the elders of the church. Let there be a full representation at this meeting.

The pastor will preach next Sabbath morning on "The Conflict Between Formalism and Spirituality."

BAPTIST CHURCH.

Every Wednesday evening at 7:30 a mid-week meeting is held in the church to which all are invited.

Friday evening 8-10 occurs the monthly social in Odd Fellows Hall, Fourth street near Glendale avenue. This is to be an "Irish Social" to which everyone is invited.

Next Sunday evening the pastor will begin a new series of sermons on "The Lost Trail." They will deal with some of the fundamentals of life. Our Sunday evening music will be fine and uplifting. The following is the list of the pastor's subjects:

March 22th, "Going Back;" April 2nd, "Finding a Guide;" April 9th, "The Lost Trail;" April 16th, "The Right Trail;" April 23d, "Finding the Trail;" April 30th, "A Lesson in Walking."

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH.

The pastor will preach both morning and night next Sunday. Morning subject, "The Worker;" evening, "Repentance."

"A Good Soldier" is the Epworth League subject. 2 Tim. 2:3; 1 Tim. 1:18; 6:12. Leader, Mack McMillian.

The W. F. M. S. thanks offering last Sunday morning was $1116.15.

The pastor expects to receive a number into the church Sunday morning.

There will be a meeting Friday night for the reorganization of the Men's Brotherhood.

The pastor expects to observe Easter week, and April 16th commence a series of special gospel services. Rev. Irvin Lovejoy, evangelist of the Northern California conference, will assist the pastor.

The W. F. M. S. sent this week a box of clothing to Africa.

A NEW BRIDGE NEEDED.

The condition of Brand Boulevard at the Verdugo Canyon wash, near Arden avenue, is one that calls for immediate action on the part of the county authorities. The recent high water took out all of the concrete work on the west side, and all traffic is now confined to the east side of the road and of the Pacific Electric tracks, and the narrow passage there is far from safe, as there is danger of vehicles going over the edge after dark. The NEWS has cause to believe that if the matter is taken up with Supervisor Pridham it will receive prompt attention. This point is one which is always menaced by high water, and the wash should be spanned by a first-class bridge with well-established approaches. The unfortunate fact that the Pacific Electric tracks are in the center of this highway, and in places several feet above the grade of the public road, makes the west side of the road a perfect trap in its present condition, so that vehicles approaching the wash are not warned of its impassibility, and are compelled to turn about at much inconvenience and go back from one to four blocks to get on the east side of the road. A proper agitation of this matter just now should yield good results.

MISLED.

A gentleman came to the valley a few days ago and bought a lot in the neighborhood of the West Glendale school, with the intention of building and establishing a small general merchandise business. He claims that the property was represented to him as being in Glendale, and he bought under the impression that it was within the city limits. He found out his mistake when he came to put in water connections and inquire about electric lighting. He will not build or engage in business there.

The fire department was called out Monday morning to extinguish a fire at Ninth and Central avenue. Loss about $75 to $100. The boys made very quick time getting away, hardly a minute having elapsed from the time the alarm was turned in till the apparatus was on the street.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Several of the boys of the senior class were present at the lecture delivered by Theodore Rooesvelt on Tuesday morning.

Mr. Howe and Miss Moore attended one of Mr. Roosevelt's lectures on Wednesday.

Miss Warner spent her visiting day at Polytechnic and the Manual Arts School.

Vernon Snively, who graduated from West Glendale Grammar School last June, and who has been attending the Canton, Ill., High School, entered the S. G. H. S. recently, making the enrollment for this year two hundred and fifty.

On Friday evening the U. S. C. Glee Club, under the auspices of the twelfth year class, rendered a very entertaining program. The share which the class received was more than satisfactory, and will be used for the twelfth year edition of the Stylus.

Interest in inter-class debates is becoming strong. The number of entries is much better than last year. The indications are that excellent work will be done.

The class competitive debates will be finished before spring vacation. The final contest between the winners in the class series will be about the first of May.

Spring vacation will be the second week in April.

The backstop on the baseball field is just about completed.

Baseball is taking the leading place in school athletics.

A series of inter-class games will be played to determine which team shall have its number upon the permanent inter-class banner.

A tennis tournament and a hand-ball tournament have been planned to take place between the classes. The plan is to center the athletic contests within the school, rather than to have inter-school contests.

The department of music is preparing music for a concert to be given next term.

The plan of the chemistry work during the second half year has been revised so that the boys are doing work of a practical nature and the girls are working with a tendency towards domestic chemistry.

The botany class made a visit to Borden's nursery, at Hollywood, last Thursday afternoon, for a special study of the carnation. They were shown what kind of slips to select, how to place them in the soil, and what constituted the best varieties. They have planted the slips they received in the lath house, which now contains a large number of choice slips.

The class in pottery has finished a number of excellent pieces, which are to be fired at Tropico through the courtesy of the tile factory.

Emily Ellias and Lecta McCoy entertained Thursday evening at the home of Miss Ellias, in Tropico, in honor of Miss Pearl Goode. The following guests were present: Miss George Duffet, Miss Pearl Goode, Miss Lecta McCoy, Miss Mabel Evans, Miss Emma Pulliam, Miss Myrtle Pulliam, Miss Grace Grady, Miss Emily Ellias, Mr. Granville McClure, Mr. Dwight Stevenson, Mr. James Wells, Mr. Sol Rehart, Mr. Owen Emery, Mr. Fay Stone, Mr. Frank Mosher and Mr. George Mitchell.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

The Civics committee of the Glendale Tuesday Afternoon Club extends a cordial invitation to the public to attend a Civics Day program in Filger's Opera House on Tuesday, March 28, at 2:30 p. m. Topics of interest to the residents of Glendale and vicinity will be discussed, including an outline of plans for a "City Beautiful" Day to be held in the near future. Miss Bertha Moore of Pasadena, Civics chairman for the District Federation of Clubs, will give an address. Aside from the civics program, a number of musical selections will be rendered.

Miss Annie Bock of Los Angeles will contribute several whistling solos, and Mrs. H. Catherwood of New York will give vocal numbers; there also will be selections by the High School Trio: Dana Burket, 'cello; Julius Krantz, violin; Katherine Hobbs, piano.

The Civics committee consists of Dr. Jessie A. Russell, chairman; Mrs. R. L. Hinckley, Miss Ruth Byram, Mrs. E. D. Goode, Mrs. E. W. Pack.

MAIDS AND MATRONS.

Mrs. H. E. Bartlett was hostess Monday afternoon at the monthly card party held by the Maids and Matrons of the Country Club. The club rooms were beautifully and seasonably decorated with peach blossoms. The afternoon was passed playing five hundred, Mrs. Mary H. Gridley taking first place, and Mrs. C. F. Parker second.

The next third Monday will be in charge of Mrs. C. G. Farrow.

AMONG OUR PACKING HOUSES

Oranges and Lemons Moving Freely —A Record-Breaking Season

A trip to the various packing houses this week shows that everything is traveling along with a merry pace. All hands are busy and many working overtime. On account of recent rains which made it impossible for the pickers to be in the orchards, the work has been held back considerably. This delay resulted in the fruit becoming a little riper than is desired and it is necessary, therefore, to rush it into the houses, pack it and hurry it East as quickly as possible.

It has been a long time since the fruit was in such a good condition as is that which is coming now. This is the result of having the trees fumigated, orchards fertilized and generally cared for in a first-class manner. Expenditures on this account are being well repaid.

The amount of fruit grown per acre this year will far exceed last year's crop, and notwithstanding the fact that the price being received for oranges is possibly a little lower than usual the ranchers will benefit financially on account of the heavy crop. While on oranges the price is somewhat lower, the returns from lemons is just about up to the average.

The Sparr Packing company has shipped up to date, forty cars of oranges and twenty-five cars of lemons. Manager F. W. Kinney, manager of the house, expects that more than 250 cars of fruit will pass through his house this year. Seven packers are employed at this house and during the past week or so have been working overtime, it being compulsary, on several occasions to resort to Sunday work. Mr. Kinney reports that the fruit is coming in in fine condition and much cleaner than usual. Five cars of oranges and one of lemons were sent from this house last week, and this week cars are being shipped at the rate of one a day. During the past few days this company has shipped considerable fruit from the C. C. U. packing house just a short distance north, which has been closed for more than a year.

At the Rossmoyne Packing house in North Glendale, eight packers are sending fruit out at the rate of eight cars every week. The shipment this week will amount to eight cars of oranges. So far this season thirty-nine cars of oranges and eighteen cars of lemons have been shipped. Manager J. B. Young informs us that he expects to send out at least 175 cars of fruit during the present season. All of this fruit comes from the Ross ranch which consits of about 375 acres planted to citrus fruits. Eighteen hands are employed at this, all told, and twenty-three are kept busy in the orchards.

The Edmund Peycke packing house, located at the corner of Glendale avenue, is sending cars of fruit East at the rate of a car every day, and the boys are busy and cheerful. Six packers are employed by this company. Since the first of February twelve cars of oranges and eight cars of lemons have been sent out. This week four cars of oranges and two cars of lemons are being sent out. Most of this fruit comes from the ranches belonging to L. H. Hurtt, Mr. Black, Mr. Fuller, J. P. Lukens, J. Kranz, Mr. Dodge, while the fruit from many other smaller ranches is packed and shipped from this packing establishment. The entire crop of Mrs. Wing's ranch will amount to about twenty cars of navel oranges and several cars of valencias, it being handled by this company.

W. C. T. U.

At the all-day meeting Friday the 17th, the election of officers resulted in the choice for president for the fifth time of Mrs. Hattie E. Gaylord, 134 East First street, Glendale; vice president, Mrs. L. E. Brown, Sycamore Canyon; recording secretary, Mrs. Wm. Reynolds, 310 Belmont street, and Mrs. Alice M. Ayers, 207 Cedar street, treasurer.

After a bountiful picnic served to thirty ladies on the porch, we listened to an address on "Why the Woman's Christian Temperance Union," by County President Mrs. Julia R. Phelps, after which our program was taken up and further business done.

Vice presidents from various churches elected. The treasurer's report showed her faithfulness in keeping her books and the gold and silver straight. March, 1910, cash on hand $112.46, received during the year for all purposes $172.91, disbursements $267.04 of which $166.75 was paid for the drinking fountain we presented to the city.

Mr. Anthony Ambrosini contemplates leaving Glendale on the 29th for St. Paul, to be absent about three weeks.

GLENDALE, CAL., MARCH 24, 1911

A recent number of the Christian Science Monitor, published in Boston, devotes over a page to an illustrated well-written article descriptive of the harbor of Los Angeles at San Pedro.

Attorney General Webb of this state has decided that mortgages be not taxed this year. This marks the end of an ill-considered measure put into the constitution by the "Workingmen's Party" in the days of Dennis Kearney. Instead of helping the borrower of money, it did him an injury and it passes out none too soon.

ROOSEVELT OPPOSES RECALL OF JUDICIARY.

We are glad to welcome Col. Roosevelt to the ranks of those who do not believe in the principle of the recall of the judiciary. Speaking at Phoenix on Monday last he said: "I feel that it is to our self interest . . . not to adopt any measure which would make judges timid, which would make them fearful, lest deciding rightly in some given case might arouses a storm of anger, temporary but fatal. You should shun every measure which would deprive judges of the rugged indifference and straightforward courage which it is so pre-eminently the interest of the community to see that they preserve."

NOT LABORERS ENOUGH.

Mr. Charles W. Eliot under date of Jan. 10th last wrote a letter to Mr. Edward Lauterbach in regard to the restriction of foreign immigration which although brief is very much to the point. He favors the policy of no restriction. We quote what he says in regard to the supply of laborers as we believe it to be absolutely true.

"The common, almost universal, fact in our country is a scarcity of labor. The same complaint is heard from farms, factories, and shops all over the country. Immense areas in the United States are not settled at all, or are very sparsely inhabited. From New England to California the crops are not thoroughly gathered and marketed; because there are not hands enough to do the work. In all the great industries the desirable development is hindered not by lack of capital, but by lack of workmen. Not only is an adequate supply of skilled labor lacking, but unskilled labor is also scarce. In some spots or at some moments a temporary oversupply of labor may occasionally exist in large cities, but this temporary difficulty is soon cured by a redistribution of the laboring population. There is always a considerable number of unemployed people, but they are chiefly persons who are disabled, incompetent, or unwilling, or they belong to trades which, because of climatic conditions or seasonal fashion, do not afford continuous employment, during the entire year. One may see in the large cities many poor people, but they constitute only a small fraction of the population, and, for the most part, it is not low wages that have made them poor, but drink, drugs, disease, or the premature death of the breadwinner of the family. The two main facts about the American industries are, first, that labor is scarce, and, secondly, that wages have been high relatively to those prevailing in other countries; that they have risen very much within the last fifty years and are still rising."

RE-APPORTIONMENT OF ASSEMBLY AND SENATORIAL DISTRICTS.

The NEWS has received from Assemblyman Chas. H. Randall of Highland Park, a copy of his re-apportionment bill as amended by the assembly and as it will probably be enacted into law. By this we find that this section will be comprised in the Sixty-third Assembly district with the following precincts: In Los Angeles city, precincts 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 13, 14, 15, Hermon, Annandale, Eagle Rock, Tropico, Glendale, Burbank, Sunland, La Canada, Acton, Del Sur, Lancaster and Palmdale.

The Sixty-second precinct will be composed as follows: In Los Angeles city, precincts 26, 30, 31, 32, 33, 35, Ivanho, Cahuenga, Hollywood, Sherman, Sawtelle, National Military Home, Lankershim, Calabasas, San Fernando, Chatsworth, Newhall and La Liebra.

The two assembly districts will constitute the Twenty-ninth senatorial district. This is a radical change in assembly district boundaries, as this district at present (the sixty-seventh) takes in all of the northern portion of the county with South Pasadena, Hermon, La Canada, Sunland and a portion of Pasadena, our representative, Hon. A. G. Cattrell, coming from the Crown City. The proposed district, it will be noticed, goes no further into the San Fernando valley than is required to take in Burbank, and then skips over the mountains and embraces the most of Antelope valley, La Liebra excepted. With this exception it appears from a geographical standpoint to be fairly outlined and reasonably compact. At the same time we do not understand why it is considered necessary to dip every assembly district into the city of Los Angeles wherever it is possible to do so. This is done in all cases except in the eastern part of the county and one in the extreme south. The result is that the city of Los Angeles is represented in eleven out of fourteen proposed districts. No one can be sure just how it will work out but it looks as if the intention is to see that the city of Los Angeles furnishes all the assemblymen except those three at the extremeties of the county.

NOW WHAT?

Within a week we have had two elections in Glendale and both have been singularly free from any evidence of "offensive partisanship." In a city where we are supposed to be rent in twain by local jealousy and sectional prejudice, this is a circumstance that is worth note. There is no question liable to arise in an ambitious and rapidly growing city such as this, which so stirs up prejudices and personal feeling as the location of a city hall or other public building. Human nature is selfish the world over and it is unreasonable to imagine that indications of that fact will not crop out when a matter which so directly affects the pecuniary interests of property owners and taxpayers is at issue. That the people of Glendale settled a matter of so much importance in a quiet and reasonable manner and with so little friction in the final struggle at the ballot box is a fact that cannot be too generally emphasized and goes far to show that our city is not divided to the extent that a few individuals would have us believe. That there was not a stronger opposition to the site selected by the "straw ballot," does not indicate that everyone casting a vote favorable to the bonds is perfectly satisfied with the result, but in the case of a great many voters it does indicate that they were willing for the sake of harmony to lay aside their personal preferences. The vote also proves that the citizens who went into a conference before the election with the intention of "getting together," abided loyally by their agreement as to supporting the bonds.

Now that there is no question before us which need arouse any feeling of sectionalism, what is going to be done? Will it not be possible for the citizens on all sides to work together harmoniously for the common good?

Will not the interests of Glendale and adjacent communities be best conserved by bending our energies to this one object just now, to sincerely "get together?" And to bring about this happy consummation we suggest that no time be lost in recalling ancient history, for there is much of it that would be better buried; and it is worse than useless for any one to imagine that he has any grievance which should rise superior to the plain dictates of good citizenship. Let us not be children, but highly resolve to work for the common good and no selfish end.

THE TROUBLE IN MEXICO.

There are many things about the government of President Diaz in Mexico which are repugnant to our American ideas of what a republic should be, and they would not be tolerated in the United States for twenty-four hours. At the same time any judgment passed upon the government of that country without taking into consideration the character and mental development of the people there, is worthless. It is very doubtful if the Mexican people as a whole are fit for self-government and it is more than probable that the dictatorship of President Diaz is the kind of a government best adapted to the needs of that country. This, of course, does not justify any of the many reported acts of cruelty. There seems to be no occasion however why citizens of the United States should fly over the boundary line to take up the cause of the insurgents and when by doing so they get themselves killed, there exists no cause why they should be given monuments on which their valor is emblazoned. Certainly the government of the United States can do but little to help such adventurous spirits who must when they take up arms against a friendly power be prepared for any unwholesome consequences. It is not noticeable that the "Soldiers of Fortune" who are fighting with the insurgents are individuals who highly appreciated the boon called "liberty" when at home; on the contrary many of them have records which indicate that their definition of the word is the right to do as I please regardless of my neighbors rights." Sympathy for the insurrectos therefore is likely to be misplaced. A few of the leaders, the chivalrous Lara, for example, are no doubt inspired by a genuine feeling of patriotism and we can only hope that the ideals of the most patriotic and unselfish of them may be attained. That the revolution may speedily come to an end must be the wish of good citizens generally, for there is no doubt but that bands of marauders using the sacred cause of patriotism for a cloak are taking advantage of the unsettled condition of affairs to plunder and destroy. The action of the United States in mobilizing so large a portion of our army along the border, has doubtless more than one object. The first duty of our government is to maintain neutrality and up to the time the troops were sent to the boundary, this was done very ineffectually. It is probable that the government of Mexico protested against our government allowing this country to be used by the revolutionists in planning their attack on a friendly nation—such a protest would have been fully warranted by the facts and could not be allowed to go unheeded. It will probably be made known in a short time also that other powers, Germany and England in particular, have been appealed to by their subjects in Mexico for protection of their interests and these governments have brought diplomatic pressure to bear upon the authorities at Washington which induced them to take action, for in accordance with the Monroe doctrine, the United States must play the role of peacemaker and conservator for the continent. All the talk about our government taking the part of the Diaz administration as against the insurrectionists is nonsense. Should the insurrection attain to the dignity of a revolution and overthrow the present government of Mexico, establishing one of its own, the government at Washington would just as quickly recognize that government as against anything in the shape of an unsuccessful rebellion.

Another admitted motive in the present movement of troops, is the desire of the army authorities to demonstrate to the people that our army is in a very effectual condition to meet an emergency call.

THE ORIGIN OF LIFE. II.

(For the NEWS.)

The conflict of intellect over this ancient enigma is only part of a much larger dispute which has existed between two oposing schools of philosophy from the very earliest times. The materialists, on the one hand, deny any reality but matter, alleging mind, intellect, emotion and all their concomitant phenamena to be merely functions of matter, and even life itself no more than a manifestation of some complex interaction among its particles. On the other hand, the Idealists assert the existence of mind as distinct from matter, implying a belief in soul or spirit, or in some force or efficient cause of design and control. Philosophically these two schools of thought are known as Monism and Dualism. But as we have shown, monistic philosophy fails entirely ta the crucial point when confronted with the problem of the origin of life in its lowest form, falling back on the lame assertion that it must have been developed by spontaneous generation at some time, or in default, the dreadful alternative of accepting a miracle. One would suppose the development of life from matter, without some external influence, would constitute a most astounding miracle in itself. But our monistic friends abandon the great principle of Biogenesis, life from life only, to make a mere guess in the dark. Professor Haekel affirms that "the oldest monera originated in the sea by spontaneous generation. This assumption is required by the demand of the human intellect for causality." But the assumption is unsupported by one solitary fact, and is merely necessitated by the atheistic argument. The demand of the human understanding for causality is certainly not adequately supplied by assumptions without evidence. There is nothing left for atheism, but such an assumption at the point where organic life commenced on this planet. The problem to be solved is the range, and especially the nature of the connection between mind and matter, between the material universe on the one hand, and the vital, mental, conscious and spiritual universe or universes on the other. Life and mind with all their implications and potentiallities, were spontaneously generated from a fortuitous mixture of inorganic carbon compounds, or they were inherited from an antecedent life and mind. One or the other of these propositions is true; there is no middle ground. Professor Haekel finds the exigencies of the logical situation require him to assume that the first is true. But he does so, not only without one fact to sustain the assumption, but with all the facts of experimental science against it. Professor Huxley who is supposed by many to have been an advanced materialist, makes the following fearless admission: "It is worth any amount of trouble to know by one's own knowledge the great truth that the honest and rigorous following up of the argument which leads us to materialism, inevitably carries us beyond it. If the materialist affirms that the universe and all its phenomena are resolvable into matter and motion, we must reply with good old Bishop Berkeley, True, but what you call matter and motion are known to us only as forms of consciousness; their essence is to be conceived or known; and the existence of a state of consciousness, apart from a thinking mind, is a contradiction in terms. And therefore if I were obliged to choose between absolute materialism and absolute idealism, I should feel compelled to accept the latter alternative." It is this great fact of consciousness which remains unexplained, and Huxley was too sincere a truthseeker to deny its reality. Let anyone attempt to explain his own personal identity, or the identity of any thinking or living being, which at different times consists of a totally different set of atoms. Something there certainly is which confers personal identity and constitutes an individual. This something cannot be inherent in the material substance of our bodies, for that is constantly changing. On this interesting point Sir Oliver Lodge says: "The realities underlying our sensations are only known to us by inference, but they have an independent existence, in their inmost nature, they may be quite other than they seem, and they are in no way dependent upon our perception of them. So, also, our actual personality may be something considerably removed from our conception of it, based on our present terrestrial consciousness—a form of consciousness suited to and developed by our temporary existence here, but not necessarily more than a fraction of our total self."

Concerning life, we may conclude with a fine pasage at the end of Sir Oliver Lodge's book "Life and Matter." Life may be something not only ultra-terrestrial, but even immaterial, something outside our present categories of matter and energy; as real as they, but different, and utilizing them for its own purpose. It is certain life possesses the power of vitalizing the complex material aggregates existing on this planet, and of utilizing their energies for a time to display itself amid terrestrial surroundings, then it seems to disappear or evaporate whence it came. It is perpetually arriving and perpetually disappearing. While it is here, if at a sufficiently high level, the animated material body moves about and strives after many objects, some worthy, some unworthy; it acquires thereby a certain individuality, a certain character. It may realize itself moreover becoming conscious of its own mental and spiritual existence; and it then begins to explore the mind which like its own, it conceives must underlie the material fabric—half displayed, half concealed by the environment, and only intelligible to a kindred spirit. Thus the scheme of law and order dimly dawns on the nascent soul, and it begins to form clear conceptions of truth, goodness and beauty; it may achieve something of permanent value, as a work of art or literature, it may enter regions of emotion and evolve ideas of the loftiest kind; it may soar till it is almost divine. Did the material molecular aggregate, of its own unaided latent power, generate this individuality, acquire this character, create these emotions, and evolve these ideas? There are some who try to think so. There are others who recognize in this extraordinary development a contact between this material frame of things and a universe higher and other than anything known to our senses, a universe not dominated by physics and chemistry, a universe where the human spirit is more at home than among these temporary collocations of atoms; a universe capable of infinite development, of noble contemplation, and lofty joy long after this planet, nay, the whole solar, system, shall have fulfilled its present destiny, and retired cold and lifeless upon its endless way."

It will be recognized that monism and materialism are synonymous with pessimism; while Dualism and Idealism are inspired by the loftiest optimism. The former has had its day, and by the inevitable progress of the human soul must give place ever more and more, to the elevating and ennobling philosophy of Idealism.

ANNUAL REPORT.

For the Woman's Christian Temperance Union for the year of March 1, 1911. Our society numbers sixty active and fifteen honorary members. During the year twenty-two regular meetings were held, our president Mrs. Gaylord presiding at each one. We made use of the fifth Fridays of the year, holding on them, one picnic, two parlor meetings and one reception to new members. The following public meetings have been held: Mrs Lucy Blanchard, state vice president on July 31st addressed the congregation at the Christian church. August 14th Mrs. Hester T. Griffith, state president, spoke at the First M. E church, in the morning and West Glendale M. E. church in the evening. Nov. 27th, Mrs. E. Norrine Law of Detroit, Mich., began a series of six meetings, subjects, intemperance and social purity, the last evening arousing intense interest in the subject of the "White Slave Traffic."

Nineteen members secured and $39.61 collections taken. There have been five open air meetings, two mothers meetings, one flower social June 3rd, when one hundred bouquets were packed and sent by free express given the W. C. T. U. for this work all over the United States. The flowers were sent to the Sailors' Rest, and Peniel Mission at San Pedro. August 15th we had a very successful supper financially, clearing $40.40.

Oct. 7th, State Corresponding Secretary Mrs. Mary C. Sampson entertained us with a graphic account of her trip to the World's W. C. T. U. convention held at Glasgow, taking us with her almost, by illustration with picture postal cards. This date being our president's birthday, a number of ladies knowing this presented her with one dozen water glasses.

In September our president with four members went before the city council petitioning them to pass an ordinance forbidding smoking on the cars in this city. They passed the ordinance the next week prohibiting smoking on all but one end of car, for which we were very thankful, but will work for and expect more. September 25th the drinking fountain at Fourth street and Glendale avenue was dedicated, Mrs. Julia D. Phelps, county president, delivered an address. Our president presented the fountain to the city. Cost of fountain $166.75

In January Mrs. Bertha Phelps Allen, county superintendent of scientific temperance instruction, together with Mrs. Gaylord, our president, visited all our public schools securing the co-operation of principles and teachers of Highland school and seventh and eighth grades to have prize essays written by the pupils offering cash prizes on the following subjects: "Alcohol and the Laborer;" "Why do Business Men Require Total Abstinence of their Employes;" "The Effects of Tobacco."

Making Insurance Maps.

In making insurance maps certain features are considered essential, and the growth of the system has proved their wisdom and changed them only as regards the amount of detail that has been incorporated. Of first importance were the colors to show the different materials used in the construction of a building. Naturally red seemed a proper color to signify brick and yellow to signify wood. These colors have always been employed for these materials. Other colors have been added from time to time, thus blue for stone, gray for iron, etc.

In fixing signs and characters for such details as stairways, fire escapes, dumb waiter shafts, etc., a principal object was to make them plain and distinct. They must be easily understood by an underwriter without reference to my key or marginal foot notes.

This object has been carried out with the result that when these insurance maps are examined by an insurance man today each sign or character has such an individuality of its own that it can be easily distinguished and is not confused with another.—Cassier's Magazine.

The Word "Fudge."

"Fudge" is a word with a history. There are prosaic etymologists, as there always are, who derive it from a Gaelic word meaning deception, but Isaac Disraeli's view is much more interesting. He derives it from a certain Captain Fudge, who seems to have been a marine Munchausen. "You fudge it" is said to have been his crew's equivalent to the modern "Rats!" In a collection of some papers of William Crouch, the Quaker, published in 1712 it is recorded that one Degory Marshall informed Crouch that "in the year 1664 we were sentenced for banishment to Jamaica by Judges Hyde and Twisden, and our number was fifty-five. We were put on board the ship Black Eagle. The master's name was Fudge, by some called Lying-Fudge."—London Standard.

The Leipzig Book Fair.

Leipzig is the largest publication center in the world. More books and periodicals are printed there than anywhere else, and more people are engaged in making and using printers' supplies than in London, New York, Berlin or Paris. Many of the orders for these publications come from England, France, Austria and other countries because the mechanical work can be done in Leipzig much cheaper than elsewhere. More than half of the transactions in books take place at the Leipzig book fair, which occurs every year at the jubilate, the first week in Easter, when booksellers and publishers from all parts of Germany assemble to compare and balance accounts and to make contracts for the next year.

A Bawbee From Carlyle.

I used to see Carlyle when I lived as a child in Chelsea. I regarded him with extraordinary aversion and fear. One day I was sent to post a letter. I suppose I was older, though unconscious, as always, of anything ahead. I cannoned into Carlyle. The impact laid me flat on the pavement, where I yelled for some minutes, though soothed eventually by England's great thinker. And then—this is the point of the story—Carlyle dived into his pockets, produced a halfpenny and said kindly, "Here is a bawbee for Bobby." I have the halfpenny to this day. When Mr. Carlyle died I was put into deep mourning. He was the first and perhaps the most interesting of all my street acquaintances.—Robert Ross in London Bystander.

Self Reliance.

The spirit of self help is the root of all genuine growth in the individual, and, exhibited in the lives of many, it constitutes the true source of national vigor and strength. Help from without is often enfeebling in its effects, but help from within invariably invigorates. Whatever is done for men or classes to a certain extent takes away the stimulus and necessity of doing for themselves, and where men are subjected to overguidance and overgovernment the inevitable tendency is to render them comparatively helpless.—Samuel Smiles.

A Field at Home.

A Boston gentleman was showing a Welt African who is interested in missionary work a number of photographs.

"What is this?" asked the visitor, gazing in wonder at one of them.

"But has your church no missionaries to send among these people?" was the quick rejoinder. — Boston Transcript.

The Milk in the Cocoanut.

Probably everybody has wondered at times what kind of stuff the "milk" of the cocoanut is. One inducement generally held out by the dealer to the prospective purchaser is that the nuts are "all milky." Recent analyses, however, have dissipated the delusion that the fluid has anything in common with real milk. It contains only 4 per cent of solids, consisting chiefly of sugars, 2.8 per cent, the balance being made up of mineral matter and tartaric acid. More than half of the sugar present is mannitol, the sweet principle of manna, which is sometimes found also in wine as a product of normal grape sugar. The question has been discussed as to whether it would be profitable to extract the cocoanut water for the sake of its cane sugar, but as this amounts to only one-tenth per cent the process would not be commercially successful in spite of the water being a waste product. Even if the water contained 5 per cent of sugar, as some specimens appear to have shown, the recovery of this amount would be unprofitable. The juice of the sugar cane yields nearly 20 per cent of sugar.—New York World.

A Fine Talker.

"I like the looks of this parrot," said the lady who had stepped into the bird store. "Is he a good talker?" The proprietor replied that the bird was an excellent talker, and it was evident the customer was favorably impressed.

"What is your price for him?" she asked.

"The man had noticed the rich apparel worn by his customer, and he judged that there was a chance to make a little "easy money" at the expense of one who would never miss it.

"Ten dollars," he said, with just the slightest possible hesitation.

"Five dollars, madam," instantly croaked the parrot.

"The lady looked at the proprietor, who had turned red.

"He certainly is a fine talker," she said, "and he also seems to have good sense. I am willing to take him at his own valuation. Do I get him for that?"

"You do," answered the bird man sadly.—Youth's Companion.

The Early Drum.

Drums are probably an eastern idea introduced by the crusaders into Europe. They are frequently mentioned in accounts of the first crusade. When Edward III. of England and his queen made triumphal entry into Calais in 1347 "tambours" were among the instruments which were played in their honor. Another of these was called a "nacaire" or kettledrum, taken, together with its name, from the Arabs. The poet Chaucer also mentioned this instrument in his description of the tournament in "The Knight's Tale." The king generally kept a troop of these bandsmen or minstrels in his employ, and we read that Edward II. on one occasion gave a sum of 60 shillings to Roger, the trumpeter; Janino, the nakerer, and others for their performances. Another minstrel was called the "cheveretter," or player on the bagpipe.

The Plague and the Tan Pits.

Bermondsey's association with the tanning industry was originally due partly to its fine oak woods and partly to the fact that the London slaughter-houses were to a large extent situated in Southwark, on the unfashionable side of the river. For a brief period, however, it enjoyed a certain fame as a health resort. That was, as Sir Henry Trueman Wood reminds us in "Industrial England in the Eighteenth Century," when "terror stricken creatures fled from the ravages of the great plague in the city of London to the Bermondsey tan pits to find strong medicinal virtues in the nauseous smell."

Two Thumbed Gloves.

In so cold a climate as that of Iceland the glove must be put off or on as rapidly and easily as possible, so it is made without fingers, and in order that no time may be wasted in distinguishing between right and left all gloves have two thumbs. You simply thrust your hand into the first glove that comes and your thumb immediately finds its way. There are, of course, drawbacks in the matter of appearance, for the dangling idle thumb looks untidy.—London Chronicle.

The Apocalypse.

There is no other book in the New Testament about which so much has been written and to so little purpose.

Dr. South said of it, "It either finds a man mad or makes him so." It is said of Calvin that he showed his wisdom in not writing a commentary on this, as he did on other books.—Chadwick.

Disadvantage In Last Resort.

Wear and Tear.

Griggs—After all, the difference between man and woman is one of wear and tear. Briggs—What do you mean? Griggs—Man spends his money foolishly on a tear and a woman on wear.—Oakland Mercury.

Books.

Be as careful of the books you read as of the company you keep, for your habits and character will be as much influenced by the former as the latter.—Paxton Hood.

He is no whole man until he knows how to earn a blameless livelihood.—Emerson.

One Thing She Could Do For Him.

One Saturday afternoon recently a frail little man started to cross Broadway at Forty-second street just when all sorts of fast moving vehicles were whirling their matinee patrons up Broadway. At the same instant a very fleshy lady started from the curb directly opposite with the same purpose in mind.

By remarkable luck both succeeded in escaping the passing wheels; but, as fate would have it, the little man, whose eyes were busy ogling the traffic on either side of him, darted plump into the oncoming woman at the middle of the street. The result was a sickening collision, with the little man down and out.

"You should have looked where you were going," said the fleshy woman, bending over the victim on the curb, to which he had been carried by a traffic policeman. "But is there anything I can do for you?"

"Yes," he replied faintly, opening his eyes a moment. "Get the number of the automobile that struck me."—Lippincott's.

Holy Lands of All Religions.

Christians call Palestine the Holy Land because it was the birthplace of the Christian religion on earth as well as that of the Saviour, whose birth, ministry and death are inseparably associated with the history of Jerusalem and vicinity. To the Mohammedans Mecca, in Arabia, is the holy land, it being the birthplace of Mohammed, the saviour of the followers of that faith.

India is the holy land of the Chinese and other oriental Buddhists, it being the native land of Sakya Nuni, the supreme Buddha. Elis, one of the several divisions of the ancient Peloponnesus, was the Mecca and the Jerusalem of the ancient Greeks. The temple of Olympus Zeus was situated at Elis, and the sacred festivals were held there each year. With Achaia it is at present a part of Greece. The believers in the Sinto religion make annual pilgrimage to Sitsa Kara, the immense stone pillar where their supreme ruler last stood while talking to men.—New York World.

Sealing a Mine.

The brilliancy of the clear autumn night was dimming in the first faint light of the dawn when the work of sealing the shafts began. Up into the cloudless sky, through the tangled steel work of the tipple, a tall tower of black smoke 300 feet high poured up into the still air and faded into the dawn. In two hours the black pits were covered, first with a layer of rails, and then on this was laid a solid bed of concrete, and two hours later only a few thin wisps of smoke that poured up through cracks along the edges of the great seal, like steam beneath the lid of a teakettle, told of the inferno that was seething in the mine 400 feet below. With the air cut off and the shaft sealed the fire could live only so long as sufficient oxygen remained to feed the flames.—Atlantic Monthly.

When the Super Is Known.

A risky uncertainty in one night stands is the super. In smaller places he works until 6 o'clock in the evening, peacefully partakes of his supper and presents himself at the stage door at 7. This leaves a very brief time for his drill. The mysteries of makeup have not been solved by him, and, worst of all, every inhabitant knows him.

"Once," as Lawrence Marston tells it, "we were doing 'Richard III.' It was a one night stand, with raw supers. All went well until the moment when the bearers, with King Edward's body on a stretcher, emerged from the wings.

"'Set down, set down your honorable load,' began Queen Anne.

"'An' do it aisy, Moike O'Brien!' called a voice from the gallery."—New York Tribune.

Damascus Olive Groves.

There is an ancient custom under which the olive groves around Damascus are guarded by official watchmen to prevent the trees being stripped by thieves. But on a certain date the governor or some magistrate issues a proclamation warning all owners of olive trees that they must pick their fruit, for after a certain date it becomes public property. If a farmer has his crop only half gathered when that date arrives the public will gather it for him.

An Extreme Case.

"What was the trouble between Swinton and his wife? Was it his fault or hers that they were unable to get along together?"

"It's rather hard to decide. It appears that whenever one of them had an irresistible impulse the other had an unalterable objection."—Chicago Record-Herald.

How He Got Her.

"The psychological moment counts for much in a love affair."

"That is true. Ferdinand, for instance, asked father for my hand the afternoon my dressmaker's bill came in."—Washington Herald.

Hereditary.

"Look at the way baby's working his mouth!" exclaimed Mrs. Newman. "Now he proposes to put his foot in it."

"H'm!" replied her husband grumpily. "Hereditary. That's what I did when I proposed."

He Went.

Origin of Plum Duff.

This is the origin of plum duff, according to the captain of an Atlantic liner:

"One Christmas day, hundreds of years ago at sea, a ship in a storm was swept by a comber that carried off her cook, her crate of chickens, her turkeys—in a word, the whole raw material of her Christmas dinner.

"But the sailors were determined to have at least some sort of Christmas pudding. They knew nothing about cooking, and they drew lots for their new cook. The lot fell to the boatswain's mate.

"This chap fished up a cookbook from the bottom of his sea chest. He ran over the pudding recipes and chose one that began:

"'Make a stiff dough.'

"He made a pudding after this recipe. It was stuffed with Malaga raisins and covered with a rich sauce. The men were delighted.

"'Put a name to it,' they said. 'Put a name to it.'

"And the boatswain's mate, knowing that 'r-o-u-g-h' was pronounced 'rough' and thinking 'd-o-u-g-h' followed the same rule, answered readily:

"'It's called duff, mates.'"

Settled the Sacristan.

A matter of fact sacristan of the Cathedral of Berlin once wrote the king of Prussia this brief note:

Sire—I acquaint your majesty, first, that there are wanting books of psalms for the royal family. I acquaint your majesty, second, that there wants wood to warm the royal seats. I acquaint your majesty, third, that the balustrade next the river behind the church, is become ruinous.

SCHMIDT,
Sacrist of the Cathedral.

The reply of the king was not that of a "gracious majesty." Its stiff formality in imitating the style of the sacristan probably was not taken by the receiver as complimentary to him:

I acquaint you, Herr Sacrist Schmidt, first, that those who want to sing may buy books. Second, I acquaint Herr Sacrist Schmidt that those who want to be warm must buy wood. Third, I acquaint Herr Sacrist Schmidt that I shall not trust any longer to the balustrade next the river. And I acquaint Herr Sacrist Schmidt, fourth, that I will not have any more correspondence with him.

FREDERICK.

The Shillalah.

The shillalah is no raw limb of a tree. It is almost as much a work of art as a well balanced cricket bat. The old shillalahs were as carefully looked after by their loving owners as is a rifle in the wilds. Cut from the sturdiest of young blackthorns and showing as little taper as an ebony ruler, it was weighed with lead or iron at the end nearest the grip so that its center of gravity was about four-fifths of the way from the hitting end. When properly seasoned by being kept in the neighborhood of the farm oven for a few months it became a thing of supple steel. And the proper pronunciation of the name of this fearsome weapon is the melodious one of "shill-ally," with the accent on the "all."—London Chronicle.

Her Queer Question.

The rector of a country parish in England having sent blankets, groceries, coals and some of the good things usual at Christmas to an old parishioner a lady expatiated warmly to him on the reverend gentleman's kindness.

"Don't you think," she asked the old villager, "that it is very good of the rector to look after you like this and send you all these nice things?"

"Good of him!" exclaimed the old man in blank amazement. "Why, what's he for?"—Pearson's Weekly.

A Slap at Whistler.

A young San Franciscan, the owner of a large and valuable collection of autographs, once wrote to James McNeill Whistler, politely requesting his signature. The letter was sent in care of the London Royal academy, with which the famous American painter was at outs. After four months the letter was returned to the San Francisco address from the dead letter office in Washington. Covering the envelope was the word, repeated numberless times, "Unknown."

Boston Could Stand It.

Ralph Waldo Emerson once made a crushing reply to a man who asked him whether the people in Boston did not feel alarmed. Said Emerson, "What about?" Said the man, "Why, the world is coming to an end next Monday." Emerson replied: "I'm glad of it. We can get along a great deal better without it."

Pleasant.

The Host's Youngest—Don't your shoes feel very uncomfortable when you walk, Mrs. Nuryche? Mrs. Nuryche—Dear me! What an extraordinary question! Why do you ask, child? The Host's Youngest—Oh, only cos pa said the other day since you'd come into your money you'd got far too big for your boots.

Good Reason.

"I wouldn't be in Brown's shoes just now."

"Why not?"

"He left them in the cellar, and they dumped four tons of coal on them before Brown was up."

A Long Swallow.

"And you give the giraffe only one lump of sugar?" asked the little boy at the zoo.

"Oh, yes!" replied the keeper. "One lump goes a long way with him."—Yonkers Statesman.

Left When She Learned.

Stories of the Paris Courts.

Among humorous stories of the Paris law courts it is told how a well known lawyer, M. Alem Rousseau, was once pleading a rather tiresome case and, noticing that the judges were paying no attention to him, said, "As the president is falling asleep I suspend my speech." But the judge had just woke up and cried, "And I suspend you from practicing for six months." Nothing daunted, the lawyer retorted, "Well, I suspend myself forever and ever," and, gathering up his brief and cap, he left the court and never appeared again.

A Paris barrister, M. Clery, however, was more vigorous. Seeing that the president and the assessors were all asleep, he stopped, and, dealing a tremendous blow on the desk in front of him that woke everybody up with a start, he cried, "Yesterday at this same hour I was saying"— And the whole bench rubbed their eyes and asked each other if they had really slept through twenty-four hours.

The same counsel was pleading at Versailles on a cold day and remarked that the judges were all turning more and more around toward a stove that gave out a welcome heat. "The tribunal behind which I have the honor of speaking" brought them all right about face at once.

He Had a Claim.

In a certain town was a young lawyer whose father was very rich and who had been sent to an eastern law school. Since his graduation he had done nothing except open an office because he had plenty of money. This young lawyer was proposed for membership in the local fire company.

"We cannot elect him," one of the members protested. "The constitution of our company says that the members of it must sleep and live here in the city, and he lives out of town on a farm and not in the city at all. He would be of no value at all in case of a fire at night. He doesn't sleep here at night."

"No," replied his proposer; "it is true he doesn't sleep here at night, but he sleeps here in his office all day."

And they elected him on that ground. —Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

The Simple Maid.

'Twas in a simple country town, and the maid of all work was simple and innocent in sympathy. When she returned from shopping half a sovereign short in her change Mrs. Mango-Chutney was naturally incensed.

"Go back to each shop, you careless girl," she told the weeping maid, "and tell them you are half a sovereign short in your money and they must give it you."

Susan went and was back again in half an hour. Entering her mistress' sanctum, she laid five half sovereigns on the table before her. Faithful as always, she had carried out Mrs. Mango-Chutney's instructions to the letter, and each shopkeeper, fearful of doing wrong and hurting a fellow creature, had thrust the missing coin upon the bewildered girl.—London Answers.

The Offending Black Bottle.

A church member in a lonely district of Saskatchewan absented himself from services for some months. On being approached on the subject he said he was sorry, but it was impossible to attend any more. He was pressed to give reasons and at length said it was owing to the bad conduct of the superintending clergyman and catechist.

He and others had witnessed them drinking when driving round on their visits. They had passed a black bottle from hand to hand. It was impossible to attend the ministry of such men. Inquiries proved that the offending "bottle" was a pair of field-glasses with which the drivers surveyed the surrounding country and tried to locate the various churches, shacks and trails.—Sunday at Home.

Not Always.

"Whenever I hear the suffrage combated," said an English lord, "on the score of woman's protected, sheltered, petted life I think of a poor woman I once questioned in England.

"This poor creature had been beaten by her husband in a drunken fury. The man had been drunk, it appears, for ten days running.

"'My good friend,' I said to her, 'does your husband always drink like that?'

"'No, my lord,' she answered. 'Sometimes I gets hout o' work.'"

A Witty Retort.

An Englishman in Dublin was asked by an Irish cab driver if he wished to ride through the city.

"No," replied the Englishman; "I am able to walk."

"Ah, well," remarked the jehu, "may yer honor long be able, but seldom willing!"

Forgot the Proverb.

"You may not get any more business from me. I've bought a law book."

"I won't worry," responded the lawyer. "In that case I shall probably get more business than ever."—Washington Herald.

A Tip For John.

Mr. Crimsonbeak—Here's an item which says the swan outlives any other bird, in extreme cases reaching 300 years. Mrs. Crimsonbeak—And, remember, John, the swans live on water.

An Old English Inn.

The Seven Stars is an inn or public house in Manchester, England, which has held a license continuously since 1370. It served as the meeting place for the Guy Fawkes band of conspirators.

An obstinate man does not hold opinions; they hold him.—Butler.

Too Precious.

"Makers to his majesty" and "Imported" are words that carry much weight to many minds. It is strange what a glory a foreign label can cast upon a commonplace article. The fact of a commodity having crossed the water, however, is not taken quite so seriously today as it was some fifty or sixty years ago. M. C. D. Silsbee gives an instance in her "A Half Century In Salem."

Miss Ann M. Rust was one of the two milliners. She had a large collection of finery, shelves full of handsome ribbons and glass showcases of rich embroideries, besides the inevitable bonnets. Once she imported a quantity of exquisite French caps. The strings were somewhat crushed in the transit across the ocean. The caps were quickly disposed of. An aunt bought one, and Miss Rust innocently observed that a "warm iron would make the creases all right."

"What!" indignantly exclaimed the aunt. "Smooth a crease made in Paris? No, indeed; never!"

A Famous English Clock.

Wells cathedral contains one of the most interesting clocks in the whole world. It was constructed by Peter Lightfoot, a monk, in 1320 and embraces many devices which testify to the ancient horologist's ingenuity. Several celestial and terrestrial bodies are incorporated in the interesting movement and relationship. They indicate the hours of the day, the age of the moon and the position of the planets and the tides. When the clock strikes the hour two companies of horsemen fully armed dash out of gateways in opposite directions and charge vigorously. They strike with their lances as they pass as many times as correspond with the number of the hour. A little distance away, seated on a high perch, is a quaint figure, which kicks the quarters on two bells placed beneath his feet and strikes the hours on a bell. The dial of the clock is divided into twenty-four hours and shows the phases of the moon and a map of the universe.—Harper's.

He Made Them Listen.

"X" Beidler, the old vigilante leader of Montana, was elected sheriff of Lewis and Clark county, in which Helena is situated. During Beidler's incumbency the jail was rebuilt and one of the new fashioned steel cages for the prisoners installed. Beidler invited all the notables down to see the cage when it was completed. The governor and the state and city officials and many prominent citizens accepted the invitation. "X" took them into a cage and excused himself for a minute. He went out and locked the door. Then he took a chair and sat down outside.

"Now, dern ye," he said to the imprisoned notables, "ye've bin edgin' off lately when I was tellin' my stories of the old days an' not listenin' to 'em. Now I reckon ye'll listen."

He kept them there three hours—until he had told his whole budget of tales.—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

Max O'Rell's Reply.

Max O'Rell at a dinner in Montreal at which were present English, Scotch, Irish and French was asked to give his opinion of the different races. Here is the answer he gave on the instant.

"The Scotchman," he said, and he clinched his right hand tightly and pretended to try to force it open with his left. "The Englishman"— And he went through the same performance, opening the hand at the end after an apparent struggle. "The Irishman"— And he held out his hand wide open, with the palm upward. "The Frenchman"— And he made a motion with both hands as if he were emptying them on the table.

There was not a word of explanation, but all understood thoroughly and had a hearty laugh.

A Good Shot.

A sportsman of great imaginative gifts and fond of telling his exploits related that at one shot he had brought down two partridges and a hare. His explanation was that, although he had only hit one partridge, the bird in falling had clutched at another partridge and brought that to earth entangled in its claws.

"But how about the hare?" he was asked.

"Oh," was the calm reply, "my gun kicked and knocked me backward, and I fell on the hare as it ran past!"

An Old Christmas Law.

The general court of Massachusetts Bay Colony, following the example of the English parliament, in 1659 enacted a law that "anybody who is found observing, by abstinence from labor, feasting or any other way, any such day as Christmas day shall pay for every such offense 5 shillings." This law was repealed in 1681.

It Got Warmer.

Little Willie—Say, pa, doesn't it get colder when the thermometer falls? Pa—Yes, my son. Little Willie—Well, ours has fallen. Pa—How far? Little Willie—About five feet, and when it struck the hall floor it broke."

On the Trail.

"I'm gunning for railroads," announced the trust buster.

"Then come with me," whispered the near humorist. "I can show you some of the tracks."—Brooklyn Life.

He Was Immune.

Howell—Her laugh is contagious. Powell—Well, I was in no danger of catching it. She was laughing at me. —New York Press.

To know the worst is one way whereby to better it.—Alfred Austin.

What's In a Name?

The late king of Siam had for a full name Phra Bat Somdeth Phra Paraminor Maha Chulalongkorn Phra Chula Chum Klo Chow Yu Hua, and this does not include his titles. A wag in Bombay saw it in the paper when the ruler was visiting that city and was being received by the British officials and passed it over to a young Irish subaltern with the challenge that he pronounce it. The young fellow looked at it a moment and then handed it back. He said he was not long enough winded, but he was sure he could play it on the garrison club piano if the instrument were a couple of octaves longer. The king's uncle, however, who was also a prince high priest, had for one name alone the following collection of letters: Pawaratsawariyalongkaun. Any one who can get through this and not flat one of the notes has lived a long time where he can look out of the window and see the gilded peak of a temple shimmering in the equatorial sun.—Christian Herald.

Starve a Cold.

Nature, as a rule, takes the appetite away when one is coming down with a cold or other infectious disease, and nature is wise. Don't coax Mary to eat when she has a cold. Don't allow the neighbors to tempt Johnny with calf's foot jelly or other dainties. When suffering from a cold the digestive organs are in no condition to care for food. The digestive juices are altered or entirely absent. One or two days' comparative fast will often assist in averting a severe siege of cold. A more convenient and enjoyable form of fasting would be to subsist for one or two days upon fruit or fruit juices perhaps, with the addition of a little toast. An exclusive fruit diet has all the practical advantages of complete fasting, while it satisfies the appetite and supplies sugar from which the liver can manufacture glycogen to sustain the white blood corpuscles in their continuous warfare against microbes.—William S. Sadler in Designer.

Giving Him Carte Blanche.

A few years ago John Kendrick Bangs, the humorist, told a number of his Broadway literary confreres that he felt particularly elated over an order he had just received from Henry W. Savage, the theatrical producer, for the libretto of a musical comedy. The play was produced a few months later. During the long period of rehearsals so much of Bangs' material was eliminated and so much other material inserted in its stead that when the curtain went up on the first night not more than half a dozen of the original lines remained.

About a week later a friend, meeting Bangs, asked him if he was writing any more plays for Savage.

"Yes," replied Bangs. "Only an hour ago I sent him 500 blank sheets of paper and told him to go as far as he liked."—Irvin Cobb in New York Tribune.

Anthony Trollope's First Earnings.

A literary man recalls Anthony Trollope's little gloat over the first fruits of his pen. "I send you a copy of 'The Warden,'" he wrote to Lord Houghton in 1866, "which Mr. Longman assures me is the last of the first edition. There were, I think, only 750 printed, and they have been over ten years in hand. But I regard the book with affection, as I made £9 2s. 6d. by the first year's sales, having previously written and published for ten years without any such golden result. Since then I have improved even upon that." Trollope, of course, "improved upon that" in no uncertain fashion.—Westminster Gazette.

It Was Real.

"My, this must have been exciting!" says Mrs. Bilmers, who is reading the paper. "A twenty foot boa constrictor escaped from the zoo yesterday and was captured after it had climbed halfway up a telegraph pole."

"And I swore off when I saw it as I went downtown!" growled Mr. Bilmers disgustedly.

"What are you muttering?" she asked.

"Nothing. I just said it must have been a ticklish job."—Chicago Post.

As Good as Lost.

"You're sure you can spare this fiver, are you, Shadbolt?"

"Dinguss, if I had not been perfectly sure that I can get along without it I never would have lent it to you." —Chicago Tribune.

Skeptical.

Teacher—Now, Johnny, what is the shape of the earth? Small Johnny—I dunno. Teacher—Why, I told you yesterday it was round. Small Johnny—Yes, I know, but I don't believe everything I hear.—Chicago News.

Not So Brave.

"He was certainly brave to crawl under the bed and engage in a life and death struggle with that burglar."

"When he crawled under the bed he thought the burglar was in the basement."—Houston Post.

For Good of the Community.

"Have you ever done anything for the good of the community?" asked the solid citizen of the weary wayfarer.

"Yes," replied the weary wayfarer. "I've just done a month."

Sensible Man.

Crawford—Do you really like to please your wife? Crabshaw—I can't say that I do, but I've found out it's the best plan.—Smart Set.

There are some who bear a grudge even to those that do them good.—Pliny.

Poe's Short Stories.

There are in the best of Poe's brief tales a constructive skill, a command of design and a gift of decoration rare in any literature and almost unknown in English, which is ever unduly negligent of form. And no one need wonder that Poe's short stories wandered swiftly out of our languages into French and Italian and Spanish, into German and Scandinavian and Bohemian, into strange tongues where no other American author, except Fenimore Cooper, had ever before penetrated. His weird psychologic studies have influenced later writers as unlike as Maupassant and Richepin, Fitzjames, O'Brien, Robert Louis Stevenson and Rudyard Kipling. His tales of a mystery solved at last by observation and deduction have been imitated by Dumas and Sardou, by Gaboriau and Boisgobey, by Wilkie Collins and Conan Doyle. And Sherlock Holmes, the only fictitious character to win international recognition in the final years of the nineteenth century, is the reincarnation of a figure first projected by Poe.—Brander Matthews in Century.

Making a Cake With the Bible.

The following unique recipe for Scripture cake is copied from an old English cookbook. For the ingredients and directions for making the cake you must refer to the Bible, in the chapters and verses given herewith. It may be added that by carefully following the directions you will be able to make a most delicious cake —the very best thing for a Sunday afternoon tea:

Four and a half cups of I Kings iv, 22; half pound Judges v, 25; two cups Jeremiah vi, 20; two cups Nahum iii, 12; two cups I Samuel xxx, 12; two cups Numbers xvii, 8; two teaspoonfuls I Samuel xiv, 25; to taste, II Chronicles ix, 9; six Jeremiah xvii, 11; one and a half cups Judges iv, 19; two teaspoonfuls Amos iv, 5; one pinch Leviticus ii, 13; directions, Proverbs xxiii, 14; bake one and a half to two hours. Baking powder may be used instead of yeast or leaven, as it is termed in the Bible.

The Handkerchief Came From Italy.

A writer in a French review points out that the handkerchief does not come to us from China, as has been generally believed, but from Italy. It is only 300 years ago that the handkerchief of a Venetian lady was considered a great curiosity. The handkerchief crossed the Alps and was received with great favor at the court of France. Handkerchiefs were then made of cambric or lawn and bordered with Venetian or Alencon lace. Under Henry III. of France the sachet was introduced. The handkerchief was taken into Germany a little later and was known as the "fazelletin," after its Italian name. Only persons of quality used it, and an edict in 1595 was published at Dresden interdicting the use of the handkerchief among the trading classes.—London Globe.

Careful of His Gun.

In one of the small mountain towns of Kentucky lived Dan, a half wit, with whom the boys often went hunting. On one of these trips Dan and the young man with him were between two hills when a rabbit jumped up in front of them and ran up the hill to Dan's right. The other fellow, being on Dan's left, did not wish to take the chance of shooting at the rabbit for fear of an accident, so he said: "There he goes, Dan! Shoot him, shoot him!" But Dan simply stood still and watched the rabbit disappear over the hill, and his partner wanted to know why he didn't shoot. After a moment's silence he answered, talking through his nose: "Did you take me for a fool? Do you think I was going to strain my gun shooting uphill?"—Judge.

Spoiled the Solemnity.

Joseph H. Choate when ambassador to the court of St. James and Mark Twain were together in St. George's chapel, London, one hot day, both seemingly sobered by the solemnity of the place.

"What an awful thing it is"— Twain began in a whisper.

Mr. Choate leaned closer to catch some ponderously sad expression from the humorist.

"What an awful thing it is," Twain repeated, "to be shut up in a place where one cannot smoke."

Beyond the Styx.

"I believe you were called the father of your country," remarked the shade of Bonaparte. "Did you like the title?"

"I did," answered the shade of Washington, "but between you and me I'd hate to be even a stepfather to some of the cities therein today."—Exchange.

Indispensible in Emergencies

THE sickness of a valuable animal on the farm demands prompt remedies.

It's a case for the veterinary—a case where minutes count. That's where the Bell Service shows its value to the farmer.

By means of the telephone the veterinary is reached, and he at once tells the farmer what to do until he arrives.

No far-sighted farmer gets along without the protection of the Bell Service.

He can never tell when it is going to save him from serious loss. Besides, he has daily proof of its usefulness.

WILMOT PARCHER FOR SCHOOL TRUSTEE.

Editor GLENDALE NEWS:

At the solicitation of friends, I have reluctantly permitted my name to go before the voters of the City of Glendale, for the position of School Trustee on the Glendale School Board, at the coming election to be held Apr. 7.

I believe that any position for the benefit of the public welfare is an honorable one, and while it is a burden on the part of many to fill it, nevertheless it is a duty that all good citizens should be willing to share in, and in this connection I desire to say that the platform on which I stand for election to the school board is short and simple. It is:

First. That no politics, in any manner whatever, should enter into the school matters by the board.

Second. That there should be no north, south, east or west in the board's consideration of school affairs.

Third. That no partiality whatever should be shown in favor of one school over another.

In the matter of the affairs of the school, or the displacement of teachers and the hiring of new ones, I will say, for the very reason of eliminating all semblance of politics or wire-pulling, I will not, in any manner, commit myself until after the first meeting of the school board, if I am elected.

If the voters of Glendale desire my services on the above conditions, I will cheerfully serve them to the best of my ability, and thank them for their patronage.

WILMOT PARCHER.

TROPICO

Mrs. William Harvey, Jr., of Tropico avenue, was a member of a box party which heard Roosevelt's address in Pasadena Tuesday afternoon.

The Baraca and Philathea classes of the Presbyterian Sunday school will hold a business meeting and social in the church parlors this (Friday) evening.

Rev. Hatch and daughters, Misses Gertrude and Emily, were among the the Tropico people who heard Theodore Roosevelt's address at Occidental college Wednesday.

Mr. Elfgin, who for the past several months has been employed at the Tropico market, is building a fine home in the Richardson tract on El Bonita avenue which he and his family will occupy.

Rev. and Mrs. H. B. Ireland of Kansas City, Mo., who have been for the past few weeks in Bakersfield, arrived in Tropico Tuesday and are leading the music at a series of revival meetings now being held at the Methodist church of this place.

The Christian Endeavor of the Presbyterian church gave a St. Patrick's party in the church parlors last Saturday evening. Games of various kinds were played and toward the latter part of the evening refreshments were served.

Miss Alma Stone, who is Mr. Weston's assistant at the Bungalow Studio at this place, has been on the sick list for the past two weeks. Miss Stone expects, however, to be about to attend to her duties at the studio by the coming Monday.

Fred M. Lee has purchased a home and site from Mrs. Early on Tropico avenue between Brand boulevard and Central avenue, the price paid being stated as $1400. Mr. Lee has charge of the signal service on the Southern Pacific between Burbank and Glendale. The sale was made through the agency of Davenport & Black.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kirby entertained with a quiet little tea party at their home on Glendale avenue Sunday evening. The guests included Dr. and Mrs. Conrad, Mr. and Mrs. William Harvey, jr., Mr. and Mrs. H. Clay Seaman, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Seaman and Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Merrill.

Shortly after noon on Monday fire broke out in the old Hobbs' place on Oak Knoll. The Glendale department was called and responded in remarkably quick time, and they alone were responsible for the saving of the building. The joke of the event was that Jerry fell through the ceiling and ever since has been yelling, "Oh my elbow."

Work on the good roads at this place is being rushed. For the past week the crew has been working night and day and by this time the bed has been completed up to the top layer of rock. Tropico avenue between Central avenue and San Fernando road is also receiving attention, as that short strip connects Central avenue with the good roads which run to Hollywood. This work cannot be completed too rapidly to suit the people of this place.

The meetings of the Tropico board of trustees will take place every Thursday evening. Attorney Frederick Baker of Long Beach has been appointed attorney for the new city. Tropico city charter was received last Saturday and is now in the hands of the city officials. Those who favored incorporation in the last election claim that the appeal to the supreme court against the decision which they won in the recent case in the superior court, has not yet been made. They claim that all statements made to the people that the appeal had been taken were entirely groundless. Unless the annexationists enter the appeal the city officials of this place state that they will at once begin on the business of the city and will bring about improvements as rapidly as possible.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON CLUB NOTES.

The club met March 16 at the home of Miss Cecelia Harris. Miss Harriet Myers assisted as hostess. Ireland's holiday was beautifully suggested both in decorations and refreshments. Mrs. Susan E. Pearce, instructor of domestic science at the Y. W. C. A., spoke on the preparation of foods and their relative caloric values. Mrs. Pearce's talk was both instructive and practical and gave a new incentive to the sometimes irksome task of cooking.

Mrs. Chas. Barker and Mrs. John A. Logan will represent their club at the reciprocity meeting at Alhambra next week. The library board is working hard on their final preparations for their Easter sale, the proceeds of which are to be used in purchasing books for the library.

POOL ROOM LICENSE EXPIRES MARCH 31.

The people of Tropico are turning their attention at this time to the Tropico pool room located on San Francisco road between Tropico avenue and Central. It will be remembered that at the last general election this joint was voted out by the voters of Tropico, the movement not to take effect until the last day of this month.

There is some talk about town about the new board of trustees of the city of Tropico licensing the pool room and allowing it to stay here, but it is hardly possible that they will permit a place of this kind to remain here after it had been voted out by the people.

REVIVAL SERVICES CONTINUE.

The second week of the revival services at the Methodist church of this place is drawing to a close with the interest in the meetings becoming greater every night. Rev. Ireland is a powerful preacher, as well as an excellent chorus leader and the duets by Mr. and Mrs. Ireland are fully appreciated by those attending.

It is Rev. Ireland's intention in the series of meetings now being held to make a special appeal to the men of the community. He is a great worker among the men and is doing everything possible to have them attend the meetings. The meetings conducted by Mr. Ireland are not long drawn out affairs. He preaches direct to the point and then leaves the decision to the listener alone. Rev. Botkin, pastor of the church, will preach a number of times during the remaining meetings.

Rev. Ireland will preach at both morning and evening service next Sunday. In the morning Mrs. Ireland will play "The Holy City," on the melophone and in the evening her solo will be selected. During the remainder of this and next week services will be held every evening at 7:30 o'clock and every afternoon at 2:30. Cottage prayer meetings are being held every morning at 9:30 at the different homes. Sunday afternoon Rev. Ireland will give an illustrated sermon to the young people.

THE ANNEXATION ELECTION.

The eastern portion of Tropico demonstrated conclusively at the election held Tuesday that it is heartily in favor of going in with Glendale, and as to incorporation of Tropico as a sixth class city, they will have none of it if they can avoid it. The vote polled was larger than was expected and proved that although the whole affair was carried off in a peaceful, brotherly, quiet manner, the undercurrent of interest was as strong as in any of the previous elections. The vote at Tropico was 99 in favor of going into Glendale and 55 against. Although fifty-five votes were cast against annexation that does not signify that there are that many people in the district voted upon who are in favor of the incorporation of Tropico.

The big surprise of the election came in the result of the Glendale count. In Glendale there were 170 votes cast and 167 of these were in favor of taking the eastern portion of Tropico in.

The residents on the east side of Tropico are satisfied with the result of the election. When seen Tuesday night several of the leaders stated that things could not have gone along nicer. The leaders for annexation are putting entire confidence in their attorney, Mr. Haas, who claims that when the injunction case comes before the supreme court he will win out in favor of his clients.

On the other hand the incorporationists claim that their opponents are powerless to do anything. Of course, they admit, if the annexationists appeal the case it will tie them up for a little while, but it will only be temporarily. Until the appeal is filed they are going ahead with the business of the new city.

WEST GLENDALE

Mrs. Martin and daughter, Miss Pearl, of Pacific avenue, were the guests of friends in Pasadena last week.

Mrs. Albert Reed and family of West Fourth street were guests at a birthday dinner in honor of Dr. Townsend of Los Angeles.

Mrs. J. J. Schremp entertained the following ladies at luncheon on Wednesday Mrs. Thomas Roberts and Miss Carrie Scoville of Los Angeles.

The Parent-Teachers' meeting was held as usual on Thursday last at the West Glendale school, and was well attended. A short musical program was given, and those present listened to an excellent address given by Mrs. Hutchison.

Mr. Lucien E. Gervais, who is so well known to all lovers of baseball in this part of the country, has signed a contract with a league of which Mr. Brashear is manager, and, together with that gentleman, left for Vancouver, B. C., on Thursday last. He is not expected back until October. Mr. Gervais is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Gervais of Ivy street.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Catlin of Burbank are extending their sympathy in the recent death of their only child—their five-year-old son. The little fellow was extremely bright, a very lovable disposition, and was known by every man, woman and child in Burbank, and to many in Glendale, all of whom will greatly miss him.

Mrs. W. T. Parker entertained on Saturday last with a birthday dinner at her home, 1504 Ivy street. The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion, and the table was resplendent with cut glass and china, intermingled with dainty bouquets of violets and ferns. Mrs. Parker received many beautiful gifts during the day. An elaborate dinner was served at noon to the following: Mrs. Frank Johnson, Mrs. C. T. Harrison, Mrs. W. E. Troutman, Mrs. Sheppard of Los Angeles, Mrs. H. T. Parker.

RESOLUTION NO. 386.

A RESOLUTION OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE CITY OF GLENDALE DECLARING THE RESULT OF THE VOTE AT THE SPECIAL ELECTION HELD BY THE CITY OF GLENDALE MARCH 17TH, 1911.

RESOLVED, by the Board of Trustees of the City of Glendale, that

WHEREAS, at the special election held in the City of Glendale, County of Los Angeles, State of California, on the 17th day of March, 1911, two hundred forty-five (245) votes were cast for, one (1) rejected for illegality, and eighty-one (81) against, the proposition of the City of Glendale incurring a bonded debt of Eighteen Thousand Dollars ($18,000.00) for the purpose of acquiring real property for use as a Free Public Library site, and for a City Hall, and for the construction of such City Hall, and

WHEREAS, the number of votes in favor of incurring such indebtedness for the acquisition of real property for use as a Free Public Library site and for a City Hall and for the construction of such City Hall was more than two-thirds (2-3) of the votes of all the voters voting at such special election.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That said proposition was duly accepted and adopted by the votes of more than two-thirds (2-3) of all the voters voting at such special election, and that the said proposition was carried, and was duly accepted by the qualified voters of this municipality, and that the City of Glendale is duly authorized to issue bonds in the sum of Eighteen Thousand Dollars ($18,000.00) for said purpose.

Adopted this 20th day of March, 1911.

ORDINANCE NO. 136.

AN ORDINANCE ESTABLISHING THE GRADE OF THE EAST LINE OF LOUISE STREET FROM THE NORTH LINE OF FIRST STREET TO A POINT WHERE SAID EAST LINE IS INTERSECTED BY THE EASTERLY PROLONGATION OF THE SOUTH LINE OF DORAN STREET.

The Board of Trustees of the City of Glendale do ordain as follows:

SECTION 1. That the grade of the East line of Louise Street from the North line of First Street to a point where said East line is intersected by the Easterly prolongation of the South line of Doran Street, be and the same is hereby established as follows:

At the Northeast corner of Louise and First Streets the elevation of the grade shall be 572.80.

At a point where the East line of Louise Street is intersected by the Easterly prolongation of the South line of Doran Street the elevation of the grade shall be 582.6.

That between these points the grade shall conform to straight lines joining the points on the same side of the street. The grades given are in feet above the City Datum Plane, and are on the property lines of the street.

A profile of Louise Street, designated and marked "Profile No. 2036," on file in the office of the City Engineer of the City of Glendale, which more particularly describes the grades herein described, is hereby declared the official profile and established grade of said Louise Street.

SECTION 2. The City Clerk shall certify to the passage of this Ordinance, and shall cause the same to be published once in THE GLENDALE NEWS, a weekly newspaper of general circulation, published and circulated in said City of Glendale, and thereupon and thereafter the same shall be in full force and effect.

Adopted this 20th day of March, 1911.

Art Steps In
Where Nature Fails

In a city like ours, with its population coming from nearly all parts of the earth, it would be difficult for a merchant to stock a line of sizes in everyone's former favorite corset. Therefore, we have solved the problem by putting in an assortment of corsets, which in point of comfort, style and durability, excel all. It's a broad statement, but we refer to the J. C. C. Corsets, "made for women who care." The fact that in the past three months we have sold nearly two hundred of these corsets, speak volumes for its pleasing qualities. Values range from 75c to $3.00. Those interested, as well as buyers, will be gladly shown.
